[Communicated.] The marriage of Miss Smith, of Barkstone, England, to David Guy, Callaghan's, Va., was solemnized on the 28d instant at Viscount Milton's residence, Callaghan, by the Rev. R. Mason, of Union. The little chapel was prettily decorated with ferns and flowers, and the bride, attended by four bridesmaids - Miss Beauclerk, Miss Velunza Beauclerk (sisters of Lady Milton), Hon. Laura Fitzwilliam, Hon. Mabel Fitzwilliam (daughters of Lady Milton) - entered the chapel at 12 o'clock, the bride being given away by A. Beauclerk, Esq.

The breakfast was served in true English style, and the bridal cake (weighing over sixty pounds) was much appreciated by the American guests, breakfast and cake being prepared by Lady Milion's English cook. The day's proceedings were wound up by a dance, in which the Virginian reel played a prominent feature much to the amusement of the English. The departure of the newly-married couple for Covington, en route for Washington, was the signal for a shower of shoes (for luck) and rice (for prosperity), thrown with glee by the younger members of the party. The bride wore a gray silk with bonnet en suite trimmed with orange flowers and jessamine, the bridesmaids wearing white llama with silk trimmings. Amongst the numerous presents given to the bride was a bandsome clock from the Countess Fitzwilliom, a gold watch and chain from Viscountess Milton, a silver teapot from Misses Beauclerk, a china tea-service from Mr. Besuclerk, and a gold locket set with turquoise from Hons. Laura and Mabel Fitzwilliam. [From the Sunny South.]

Laura, My Youngest and Fairest. BY E. W. CHEVES.

BY E. W. CHEVES.

Two days before Laura's death, while I lay ill with the same malignant disease (yellow-fever) that afterward proved fatal to my darling, a vision of unutterable beauty appeared to me—an angelic figure dressed in a transparent veil, similar to the one (my bridal veil) which they placed over the dead body of my child. This lovely shape floated up to my bedside and regarded me a moment with an expression of tender and wistful sadness—a smile of adorable sweetness, touched with pltying melancholy. Then it seemed gradually to dissolve into air. I looked upon this afterward as a vision of consolation—a message from the Father who loveth while he chasteneth his children:

Laura, my voungest love— Laura, my youngest love

Tho' thou art born in heav'n above, I am thy only mother.

Alas! why should I wildly weep For thee, the early dead, who now Seems resting in a happy sleep— Death's anguish bantshed from thy brow, And calm and still thy maiden heart That beat so tenderly for me—

Thy sweet eyes closed, thy lips aport?
Oh, for one look, one word from thee!
Valu, frenzied thought! she hears me not,
And never more her accents sweet
Ehall meet my car as when we sought,
At twilight's hour, the mercy seat.

Farewell, my own! heaven seems more near Since thou art there. Patient I'll tread Time's lonely shore, while shadows drear Seem darkening round my aged head; For I had hoped that gentle hand. Would close at last my dying eyes. Who now, in all this foreign land, Will more thy mother when she dies? Who now, in all this foreign land,
Will mourn thy mother when she dies?
Re still, my heart!—on that fair shore
We soon shall meet, to part no more;
The Saviour smiles and calls me home,—
My sainted dead, I come—I come!

*These lines were written by a venerable lady sixty-five years of age.

The author of the above is a venerable lady of Louisiana, who has had more than her share of the adversities which have fallen so heavily upon that State. To all the terrors of the war and the social revolution was added last year the destructive overflow, which wasted her estate, until now the kindness of a generous people exhibited towards her will not be misdirected. TERRIBLE DISCOVERY ON THE BOTTOM OF THE MONSTER-A BROTHER IN SEARCH OF A SIS-

A Plymouth (Eng.) correspondent writes: A most remarkable occurrence connected with the wreck of the steamship Schiller has just come to light. It is remarkable not only for the manner in which it became known. but also because it leads to the strange discovery concerning the existence of carniverous monsters inhabiting the bottom of the sea. Naturalists must read this account upon its publication in the Mercury with in terest, inasmuch as it will explain why so few of the bodies of human beings drowned in foundered ships ever come to the surface. While portions of wrecked vessels are often found floating even in mid ocean, not one in a thousand persons lost is ever discovered; yet natural causes, such as the development of gasses by internal decomposition, should bring the corpses to the surface in a floating condition. If the world is to believe what two of the divers who went down to the bottom last week to examine the wreck of the Schiller on the Reterrier Ledges

Mr. Franz Hauser, whose body was buried a few days ago at Penzance, near Land's remed by the year or on a lease. Possession given End, was a native of Luxembourg. His mother and two sisters were on the Schiller, intending a visit to their home, while he remained in Iowa. Upon the news of the wreck of the vessel he became so deeply affected that he fell into a raging fever. When he became convalescent be made inquiries whether the bodies of his relations had been fruit-trees, &c. Will be divided if desired. Apply found. He obtained no satisfactory information in the States, and at last resolved to make a personal effort on the spot. He came across the ocean and at once went to Penzance, where at last he gained the certainty that neither of the K three corpses had been recovered. Thereupon he employed two experienced divers, purchased a complete diving armor, and submitted to a course of training under the two men he had employed. As soon as able to move about under the water and accustomed to the heavy suit, he determined to descend into the sea where the Schiller had gone down and search for his mother and sisters. Several descents were made without success-the remains of the vessel were seen. yet no body could be observed. But one day as the three men were silently moving about among the sharp-pointed crags and reefs, and being a considerable distance away from the wreck itself, Franz Hauser was startled by the sight of what appeared as the head of a female form. It seemed to hang from the top of a reef some ten feet by pointing towards it. Slowly the three | FRESH CANDIES. stepped forward in the direction of the reef.
